

Preparation, collaboration and communication are the key ingredients for the success of any captive program – and that includes knowing exactly how a program will respond in the event of a claim.

Our knowledge and understanding of applicable local laws and international conventions enables us to resolve claims quickly and effectively, delivering tremendous benefits to our clients.

AIG's captive fronting clients have full access to and benefit from our industry-leading claims teams located in over 150 offices globally, ensuring exceptional, consistent service anywhere in the world. We can mobilize our specialists across our expansive global network in a matter of hours to provide local claims support, respond at the scene and identify resources to help minimize downtime and limit business interruption. With decades of experience in identifying emerging risks and trends, we can help you manage your exposures and mitigate future risks with confidence.
